KATTAU FAMILY INJURED

BUGGY IN WHICH THEY WERE RID-ING STRUCK BY A CAR.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kattau and Gertrude Otto Severely Bruised-Cause of the Accident.

A distressing street car accident last night at 7:45 o'clock between Sherman drive and Kealing avenue, in Irvington, resulted in injury to three persons, the death of a horse and the destruction of a buggy. The people injured are William H. Kattau and his wife, living at No. 931 Harrison street, and Gertrude Otto, fourteen years old, living at No. 38 Oriental street. Mr. Kattau's injuries consist of several cuts on the scalp and on the legs. His wife was seriously infured. She was badly hurt on the head above the eyes, on the chin and scalp. She also suffered greatly from shock. Miss Otto was cut on the forehead, but her injury is not considered serious.

Mr. and Mrs. Kattau, with Miss Otto, were driving out East Washington street to Mr. Kattau's son, Herman Kattau, who lives on Riley avenue, in Irvington. They were seated in a phaeton. As they drove along Washington street, between Sherman drive and Kealing avenue, they saw before them a large black object. At this point it is very dark and Mr. Kattau could not distinguish the object. As he drove up to it he saw it was a large moving van. He drove to the right in the hope of getting past it of the rear wheels of his rig became fastened on one of the street car tracks. Suddenly the moving van turned from the road and to the surprise and horror of the occupants of the Kattau rig a street car came rushing through the darkness. Before the people had time to jump the car had struck the buggy, throwing it high in the air. The occupants were thrown out. They received several cuts as the car struck the buggy. The horse they were driving suffered a broken leg and was knocked twenty feet from the track.

HEARD THE CRASH. The accident occurred in front of C. D. Lancaster's residence, No. 3601 East Washington street. When he and his wife heard the crash they ran from the house and saw the injured lying in the roadway. On the car were several passengers going to the city, and when the crash came yells of fear and excitement were heard. Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster, with the motorman and conductor, carried the three wounded people into their house. Every attention was given the wounded, and especially Mrs. Kattau, who appeared to be the most seriously hurt. When she was picked up she was unconscious. Mrs. Lancaster by hard efforts suc- terests of Porto Rico are large. The pro- came there yesterday afternoon and regisneantime Dr. Spencer, of Irvington, had en called. When he arrived he dressed the wounds of the injured and they were taken home in carriages. Bicycle Policemen Griffin and Kitzmiller were sent to the scene and they found, after the injured had been taken care of, that the lone horse, with its broken leg. was lying in a gutter suffering and surrounded by more than a hundred curious ple. Griffin saw at once that the only thing to do was to kill the horse, and it done as quickly as possible. It was said by Mr. Kattau that the horse was worth $300. It had been in the family but a Mr. Kattau is fifty-five years old. He is a contractor with his son, whom he was to visit last night. His wife is about two years his junior. The motorman of the car, which was No. 696 on the East Washington-street line, said he only saw the one rig. That was the large wagon that was in front of him, and which pulled off the track as he came down the grade. He said he rang the gong several times but did not see the Kattau rig still on the track. It was said the car was running at a speed of ten miles an hour. Street Car Killed a Cow.

The wreckage of the Kattau accident had hardly been cleared away when another street car came tearing down Washington street from Irvington and struck a cow about one hundred feet from where the first accident occurred. The cow was killed instantly. The owner's name could not be learned.

TWO GIRLS ESCAPE.

Ollie Lance and Stella Lee Quit Home of Good Shepherd.

Ollie Lance, sixteen years old, and Stella Lee, seventeen years old, inmates of the House of the Good Shepherd, escaped from the institution Wednesday night. Yesterday morning a farmer named Miller, living near Bieler's farm in Maywood, reported to Patrolman Green that he had given shelter to two girls. He said he met the girls near the I. & V. Railroad, and they were walking toward Maywood. He said they were hatless and both were dressed alike, and this drew his attention. He spoke to them, and they told him they were hungry. He said he took them to his home, where they were given breakfast. They remained there for some time resting themselves. They conversed little with his wife. The latter noticed that the girls' dresses were dirty and wet, indicatng that they had evidently slept out of oors Wednesday night. W. H. ELLIOTT, COMMISSIONER OF ment, and Heartily in Sympathy with All Things American.

ISLAND HAS A GREAT FUTURE

TRADE SHACKLED BY SPANIARDS HAS BEEN LIBERATED.

Americans Have Cleaned the Cities Built Roads, Established Schools and Instilled Energy.

Capt. W. H. Elliott, commissioner of the interior for Porto Rico, is back in the Of the Significant Fact States on a sixty days' leave of absence, and spent yesterday and last night in Inand spent yesterday and last night in Indianapolis. This afternoon he will go to New Castle, his former home. Captain Elliott has been a resident of Porto Rico since February, 1899, going there as director general of posts. He was appointed to this position by the late President Mc-Kinley. June 6, 1900, he received the appointment of commissioner of the interior. Captain Elliott's family has been with him in Porto Rico and they find the social conditions there very agreeable. They live in San Juan, where there is a large Amer> sland," said Captain Elliott last night, "has enabled me to become acquainted with the conditions of the country and the people to such an extent that I feel warranted in expressing an opinion concerning the future of Porto Rico. I regard the pros pects as exceedingly bright for the island. In the first place the change of government from the old Spanish regime to the American military government was satisfactory to the people. The change from military government to civil government. with full liberty of thought and action, has been most pleasing to them. The civil government now in vogue was established by the so-called Foraker act, adopted by Congress, and which came into operation May 1, 1900. Under this law there is provided a Governor and an executive council of eleven members. Five of these are natives and six are Americans, who are also heads of the several departments. These eleven members are all appointed by the President. The six heads of departments constitute the Governor's Cabinet. The Council is empowered to grant all franchises, and in the Legislature sits as the Senate or upper house. A lower house of the General Assembly, composed of thirty-five members, is elected biennially by the people. During the two annual Wabash, Wayne and Vigo. sessions of the Legislature that have been held nearly all of the old Spanish legislation has been wiped off the statute books and American laws enacted instead. The island is now governed practically by the same privileges and liberties as the people of the United States. This is a are being administered without friction under the new government, and the affairs of Porto Rico are moving along as smoothly as those of any State in the Union. "At the time of the American occupation of Porto Rico, in 1898, the industries of the island were at a low ebb. The people, especially in the interior, were without employment, and there was a great deal of suffering and starvation, which was intensified by the hurricane of Aug. 8, 1899. The military government relieved the situation by issuing rations to the poor, and it continued this assistance for a year. When the civil authorities took control they were without means to extend material aid and insisted that the people should work. They were offered employment on the interior roads and thus the situation was gradually relieved until the planters were enabled to offer employment on the plantations. PRODUCTS OF ISLANDS.

"On account of the climate the needs of laboring men in Porto Rico are few. A very little work enables them to get along comfortably. Within a year after the institution of civil government there was to be observed a marked change for the better in all lines of industry. The rapid improvement has continued. The sugar induction of sugar the past year was almost | tered as A. Williams, of Greenwood. As equal to the largest crop ever raised on he wrote the name of Williams he seemed the island. The cane now planted will, if the crop is successful, exceed the record | tention of the clerk was drawn to him. He of any previous year. Under Spanish control the people were not allowed to manufacture cigars for export; the tobacco raised had to be sent to Cuba, where it was made into Havana cigars. Now, all tobacco raised in Porto Rico is manufactured into cigars for the United States. market. The coffee plantations of Porto Rico were seriously injured by the nurricane of 1899 and the planters, being in a bad financial condition, were unable to immediately restore them. But during the past year they have succeeded in getting most of the old territory back into good bearing condition. It is estimated that the coffee crop this year will equal fully 80 per cent. of the normal crop. The trouble, however, with Porto Rican coffee, is that it has never had a market in the United States. In Europe it is considered equal to Java coffee and the whole crop is marketed in Europe. On account of the high duties and cost of transportation the returns to the coffee growers are comparatively small, rendering coffee cultivation unprofitable under present conditions. If the coffee drinkers of the United States could be induced to appreciate the value of Porto Rican coffee, and class it where it belongs, they could well afford to pay a price for it that would induce the owners of coffee lands to restore this industry to the leading position it once held on the island.

"I regard the growing of fruits as the coming industry of Porto Rico. The climate and the soil are well adapted to fruit culture. A frost has never been known to fall on the island and the quantity of fruit grown there is of the finest. In the past no effort had been made to cultivate fruit because its exportation was not permitted. As a result, the only oranges found on the Island grow wild, in great profusion and of superior quality. Now, however, many Americans are purchasing small tracts of land, planting them in oranges, grape fruit, pineapples, bananas and other tropical fruit, to an extent that, within a few years, the fruit exports of Porto Rico will assume large pro-

GOOD ROADS AND SCHOOLS.

"The first efforts of the cvil government were directed towa: as providing the people with what they most needed and most earnestly desired-good roads and schools. During the past four years we have constructed on the island nearly as many miles of good roads as the Spaniards constructed in four houndred years, and where there was not one public school building on the island when the Americans took possession there are now nearly one hundred. Over 50,000 children attended public school last year and the number will be largely increased this year. About $2,000,000 have been expended in the construction of roads and schoolhouses and the good work is being continued with increased vigor. We have established a system of American taxation which requires the rich, instead of the poor, to pay the taxes. The real-estate valuation of the island amounts to about $125,- cent., one-half of which is for insular purposes and one-half for municipal purposes. We have in addition an internal revenue tax on rum, alcohol, tobacco and some other articles, which produces about $750,000 a year. Our receipts from customs on foreign imports amount to about the same. Last year the appropriations for all insular purposes aggregated two million dollars. On July 1 last the treasury held a balance of receipts over expenditures of about $315,000. "The climate of Porto Rico is naturally healthful. The temperature ranges from 60 to 90 degrees at San Juan throughout the year. It averages 72 degrees. The island is swept by the constant trade winds of that latitude so that the people breathe pure sea air. There are very few swamps or wet lands to produce malaria, and the only cause for sickness or epidemic in the past was the unsanitary condition of the cities and towns. Particular attention has been given to the matters of sanitation and hygiene. An insular board of health, with ample powers, has enforced rigid regulations until the cities and towns are clean and in good condition. The people have been taught to take pride in their homes and new methods of living. As a result there has not been a single case of yellow fever in Porto Rico during the past four years, and all kinds of so-called climatic diseases have been reduced to a minimum. The mortality record during the past year shows a less number of deaths than in any

"There are probably 2,500 Americans in Porto Rico. In and about San Juan, the capital city, there are about six hundred, making quite a colony for social purposes. Life there is free and easy. The lines are not tightly drawn-good behavior being about the only requirement of entrance to social circles. The climate is adapted to out-door entertainment and enjoyment the year through. We have a prosperous club entitled the Porto Rico Yacht Club, of which, it happens, the five leading officials are from Indiana. We also have an excellent baseball asociation which provides two games each Saturday afternoon for the edification of the people. The interest that the Porto Rican youth has developed in baseball is remarkable and encouraging. It must not be understood that the social life we enjoy is wholly among ourselves, as Americans. The natives of the better class join with enthusiasm in entertainments of every character. Many of them speak English fluently and those who cannot have learned to understand well by signs and motions. They do not seem to be at all embarrassed because they do not speak our

OLD MAN KILLS HIMSELF AT WEIN-BERGER'S MOTEL.

Clara Schinn, a Waitress, Made Probably Successful Attempt at the Illinois House.

Dr. Schenck was called last night to Weinberger's Hotel, 10 and 12 East Louisiana street, where it was said one of the roomers was lying in his room in an unconscious condition. The doctor hurried to the hotel and found an old man suffering from what was thought to be morphine poisoning. The man was sent to the City Hospital, where he died last night. The clerk at the hotel said the old man disturbed about something, and the atwas assigned to a room. Last night one of the chambermaids in looking into the room saw the old man lying on the bed dressed in his street clothes. She thought nothing more of the incident and did not notify the office until several hours later. Then an examination was made and the old man could not be awakened. On a table in the room was a small paper containing morphine. This was taken to the City Hospital.

Who the man is remains a mystery. He is thought to be about seventy-five years old. He wore a long beard and was dressed in plain clothes. Nothing was found on his person that would aid in identifying

She is twenty-two years old and has been working at the hotel for six weeks. She told the manager after her discharge that she could not leave until late in the afternoon. The manager said she might remain until Friday if she had no place to go. The girl was despondent, it was seen, and walked from the room. She went to a drug store, where she purchased the poison. Returning to the hotel, she went to James McCaffery's room on the second floor and took the contents of an ounce phial. A passing chambermaid, in looking into the room, saw the Schinn girl, and she walked inside to ascertain the trouble. The face of the girl presented a ghastly appearance. The lips bore the marks of burns, and the face had taken on purple shade. Her eyes were closed and the servant could not arouse her. Dr. Schenck, of the City Dispensary, was notifled, and he hurried to the place. He gave the girl emetics, but these were of little value. He called the ambulance and the girl was taken to the City Hospital. Inquiry at the hotel failed to reveal anything concerning the girl's history or her relatives. One woman volunteered the information that the girl possessed a fouryear-old child which was being reared by woman in this city.

BRETHREN INSTITUTION FOR THIS CITY.

L. Elder Offers Site Buildings to Denomination on Certain Conditions.

ACCEPTED PROPOSITION

CHURCH AGREES TO SELL 400 LOTS AS CONSIDERATION.

School to Be Located South of Garfield Park, Near Shelby Street-Details of Proposition.

This city is to have a new denominational college, which, if the plans of its sponone of the largest and best equipped sectarian institutions in the country. William L. Elder, of this city, has made a in Indiana which is almost certain to be accepted. He offers to furnish the site and to put up the buildings for the new college on certain conditions which are considered satisfactory by the leading ministers of the church.

Mr. Elder offers to donate eight acres of ground, to erect buildings of modern construction and equipment, at a cost of not less than $40,000, and to turn the entire institution over to the trustees of the church on condition that the church take hold of the disposal of the remaining firm the charges preierred by Mrs. Gilliam, ground in the tract of land which Mr. Elder owns in the southern part of the city. If the church shall agree to sell for Mr. ber of the congregation but who is now in Cincinnati. Charges will also be preferred field Park, near Shelby street, an addition which contains 100 acres, he will present it with the college without any expense on its part.

That the offer is certain of acceptance was evidenced by the favor with which it was received yesterday by the conference of United Brethren ministers in Marion. The proposition was made to them; they diana Conference, which will be in session talked that the proposition will receive the unanimous approval of all the conferences. For many years the United Brethren Church has desired to have a college large faith in Indiana, preferably in Indianapolis, but on account of the fact that there are not many wealthy men among the communicants, the project has not proved feasible in the past. The offer of Mr. Elder was received, therefore, with enthusiasm by the trustees and the elders of the denomination. Indianapolis is considered the ideal site for a state sectarian institution on account of its central location and the extraordinary facilities which students of such a school might enjoy. The church in Indiana numbers 50,000 persons, including many people who are comfortably well off, but not many who are independently rich. an institution it is thought that there will be little difficulty. Help would be received in all probability from members of the denomination outside of Indiana, since the school would not draw all its students from this State, and since the church has no institution of importance in this part of the country. The members of the church feel also that if proper representations were made to a number of famous philanthropists there would be no trouble in securing liberal aid in the endowment. Discussing the plans for the new school Mr. Elder said last night: "I have offered the church eight acres of ground to be used as a college campus and have agreed to erect permanent buildings of brick, designed by an architect of national reputation, and furnished with the most modern and elaborate equipment, on condition that the church take up the work of disposing of the rest of my addition. There are 400 lots outside of the tract I have reserved for the college, and it is expected that these lots will be sold for the most part among the members of the church. The addition will be known in the future as University "The plans for the new college will go forward at once, as there is almost no likehood of my offer being refused. The two conferences to which it will be submitted shortly will undoubtedly approve the plan, and there will be nothing further to do except go ahead with the work. I will have the plans drawn for the brick buildings to I am not prepared now to say just how many. The college will in all probability be coeducational and liberal in its views. Its endowment may be $100,000 at the start.'

about the neck and breast and one finger was lacerated by her assailant. Last night she suffered so severely that she had difficulty in breathing. Mrs. Hauk said she and her sister-in-law had been down town visiting the latter's husband at the Union Station and were returning home. She left her sister-in-law at the corner of Stevens street and Virginia avenue and started home alone. As she turned into Stevens street she noticed a short heavy-set white man walking closely behind her. As the street is very dark west of Virginia avenue she walked in the middle of the roadway. Seeing that the man increased his gait she hastened her steps until she got into Greer street. From Stevens street to McCarty Greer street is very dark and she again took the middle of the street. As she passed the first alley south of Stevens street she agan saiw the strange man' coming out of the mouth of the alley. He started toward her and she ran toward the sidewalk. As she reached the curbing within two are three houses from her own home the man grabbed her around the neck. He did not utter any sound, but forced her to the pavement. She said she grappled with him, but the tight hold he had on her throat would not permit any

After forcing her to the pavement the man fell with his knees against her breast. In the struggle she placed one hand against his face, and he bit her finger. When he loosened his hold on her throat she gave several outcries, which attracted the attention of her husband. The latter ran to the front gate and saw his wife lying on a patch of grass between the curb and the sidewalk. He did not realize at once that it was his wife, and hesitated at the front gate on account of having an injured foot. Patrolmen Kerns and Russell, who were around the corner from Greer street, on McCarty, ran to the scene when they heard the woman's cries. They picked her up, and then Hauk walked down from his gate. With the assistance of the police Hauk carried his wife into their home and Dr. Marxer was summoned. The woman suffered greatly from nervous shock.

Mrs. Hauk said she had seen her assailant many times, as he passes her house every day about 5 o'clock, going south and turning west on McCarty street. She said she did not know his name. It was said last night that this was the third attempted assault in that block within three months.
